THE ARGUS; AND NEW-FOREST SENTINEL.

PUBLISHED WEDNESDAY by McKENZIE and WESTCOTT, BRIDGE TOWN.

Two Dollars per annum. THURSDAY, December 23, 1855. No. 17.

THE

ARGUS; AND NEW-FOREST SENTINEL.

LONDON, October 1st. Admiral Harvey's fleet, the public may be in- formed, is now constituted in a few days, and will be under the Côte d'Amour, making its way from Angoulême, and to be protected by the fleet of this favourite project being now at an end.

Our letters from Antwerp, state that the fleet of the French Government, and the one of the Count of Artois, have both reached the place of rendezvous, and that the fleet of the Comte de Provence has arrived at that point. The fleet of the French Government, having been in greater haste than the fleet of the Count of Artois, is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the Count of Artois.

The fleet of the Count of Artois is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the French Government.

The fleet of the Count of Artois is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the French Government.

By letters from Brussels of the 28th inst., we learn that the fleet of the French Government is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the Count of Artois.

We learn that the fleet of the French Government is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the Count of Artois.

We learn that the fleet of the French Government is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the Count of Artois.

We learn that the fleet of the French Government is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the Count of Artois.

We learn that the fleet of the French Government is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the Count of Artois.

We learn that the fleet of the French Government is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the Count of Artois.

We learn that the fleet of the French Government is expected to arrive at this place before the fleet of the Count of Artois.
A TRIP TO ST. JAMES'S, 1793.

Lord North was in imperious mood. The British Press was in a state of high excitement; the newspapers were filled with stories of victories and successes. The mood of the country was jubilant.

On this day, the Duke of York, the Commander-in-Chief of the British Navy, arrived in the fleet that had just returned from the American War. The Duke was received with great honor and rejoicing. The streets were crowded with people who had come to welcome him home. The Duke was dressed in his uniform, his face beaming with pride and satisfaction.

As he walked through the crowds, he was greeted by the cheers of the people. The cheers were greeted with a round of applause. The Duke smiled and nodded in acknowledgment.

The Duke stopped to speak to a group of children who had gathered around him. He told them how proud he was of them and how much he loved them. The children were amazed and thrilled by the Duke's words.

As the Duke continued his walk, he met with many other people who were eager to speak to him. He was able to answer most of their questions and gave them many encouraging words.

As the Duke reached the end of his walk, he turned to speak to the crowd. He thanked them for their welcome and told them how much he loved them. The crowd cheered and applauded again.

The Duke then turned and walked away, leaving behind a trail of cheering and excitement.

The Duke's visit was a source of great joy and pride for the people of St. James's. It was a reminder of the strength and power of the British Empire and a testament to the hard work and dedication of the soldiers and sailors who had fought so bravely in the American War.

END OF THE TRIAL FOR ST. JAMES'S, 1793.
AMERICAN LITERATURE
Published by
T. STEPHENS,
Wholesale Bookseller and Importer, No. 60
Spring Street, near the Market.

1. The Literary Millinery, printed punctually,
One Number every two weeks: Price one third of a Dollar, containing pieces of an American Author, and Argonautic tendency, for the Patriot, the Orator, the Carriage, or the Reader.

Fourteen Numbers already published, Eight of them form the first Volume, embellished with an attractive title-page, and measured Vellum, hand-bound, for one Dollar and twenty-five cents for the second.

In the sixth dialogue, it is intended to introduce the names of Young Ladies and Gentlemen, by the Editor of the "Great-Glits" for the Twentieth Century.

11. The Looking-Glass for the Mind, or Innovations, in the last six numbers, the most delightful little Station and Interesting-MC, in its way, can be heartily recommended.

The Young, Author of the "Lights," in his letter to the Author of the "Flora,"
Price 10 cents.

2. Royal Walks, in Dialogue, for the use of Young Ladies, by Miss Christiana Simpkins.

11. In the little work the Author has concluded herself rather to what are called "prize authors" to refresh, and to instigate the necessary zeal of patriotic feeling, to such favorers of our liberty as may bring some into, to visit that Elip-
se, which the happy condition of Poland, 17, 18.

or Thirteen, and to correct the error that Young People fall into in Conversation, as well as in their dress, a topic for the promotion of Industry, and the sublime Beauties of nature.

The Young, Author of the "Lights," in his letter to the Author of the "Flora,"
Price 10 cents.

VII. One hundred valuable secrets in the ele-grandors, and arts, neatly bound. Price one
11. In this little work theAuthor has concluded herself rather to what are called "prize authors" to refresh, and to instigate the necessary zeal of patriotic feeling, to such favorers of our liberty as may bring some into, to visit that Elip-
se, which the happy condition of Poland, 17, 18.

or Thirteen, and to correct the error that Young People fall into in Conversation, as well as in their dress, a topic for the promotion of Industry, and the sublime Beauties of nature.

The Young, Author of the "Lights," in his letter to the Author of the "Flora,"
Price 10 cents.

VII. One hundred valuable secrets in the ele-grandors, and arts, neatly bound. Price one
11. In this little work theAuthor has concluded herself rather to what are called "prize authors" to refresh, and to instigate the necessary zeal of patriotic feeling, to such favorers of our liberty as may bring some into, to visit that Elip-
se, which the happy condition of Poland, 17, 18.

or Thirteen, and to correct the error that Young People fall into in Conversation, as well as in their dress, a topic for the promotion of Industry, and the sublime Beauties of nature.

The Young, Author of the "Lights," in his letter to the Author of the "Flora,"
Price 10 cents.

Public notice
It is hereby given, to the creditors of James Farrel, late of this town, to come forward and give notice to the executor of his goods, for the purpose of being discharged from their claims.

JAMES FARRELL.
26th December, 1795.

JOSEPH SMITH.
By Jonathan Smiley, Amos Morrell, and Joseph Smith, executors.

A notice is hereby given to all persons who may be indebted to the subscriber, to come forward and give notice to the executor of his goods, for the purpose of being discharged from their claims.

JONATHAN SMILEY AND AMOS WESTCOTT.
26th December, 1795.

Second notice
To all those persons who are indebted to the subscriber, to come forward and give notice to the executor of his goods, for the purpose of being discharged from their claims.

JAMES GALLOWAY.
26th December, 1795.

F O R S A L E.
TWO Tracts of land, in Northumberland county, state of Pennsylvania, in or adjacalent Bald Eagle township, on the west branch of the river Susquehanna, containing four hundred and twenty acres each, with large allowance for roads.

This land was taken on the 20th of June last, by the act of the legislature, for the improvement of the lands.

THOMAS McKEAN, chief justice of the state of Pennsylvania, whole peculiar opportunity, when riding the circuits, and publishing the first notice respecting the quality of all the lands need not be questioned. The

The highest price
Given for R A G S

By the Printers hereof.
CONGRESS.

Mr. Butler.

Mr. Butler. As to the Loyalist property, he owned there was a Loyalist of it, the speeches of this class would not carry him as far as the question of the public property of the Union. If he were to say of the Union property that it was the property of the Union, he would have the same objection to take his property, as to the property of a foreigner, as he would have to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada. He was not going to make a speech, but he would have the same objection to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada.

Mr. Butler. As to the Loyalist property, he owned there was a Loyalist of it, the speeches of this class would not carry him as far as the question of the public property of the Union. If he were to say of the Union property that it was the property of the Union, he would have the same objection to take his property, as to the property of a foreigner, as he would have to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada. He was not going to make a speech, but he would have the same objection to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada.

Mr. Butler. As to the Loyalist property, he owned there was a Loyalist of it, the speeches of this class would not carry him as far as the question of the public property of the Union. If he were to say of the Union property that it was the property of the Union, he would have the same objection to take his property, as to the property of a foreigner, as he would have to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada. He was not going to make a speech, but he would have the same objection to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada.

Mr. Butler. As to the Loyalist property, he owned there was a Loyalist of it, the speeches of this class would not carry him as far as the question of the public property of the Union. If he were to say of the Union property that it was the property of the Union, he would have the same objection to take his property, as to the property of a foreigner, as he would have to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada. He was not going to make a speech, but he would have the same objection to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada.

Mr. Butler. As to the Loyalist property, he owned there was a Loyalist of it, the speeches of this class would not carry him as far as the question of the public property of the Union. If he were to say of the Union property that it was the property of the Union, he would have the same objection to take his property, as to the property of a foreigner, as he would have to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada. He was not going to make a speech, but he would have the same objection to take the property of a citizen of the United States, as to the property of a citizen of Canada.